Welcome to the heart of Europe: where business meets nature!

Located on two campuses in the Stuttgart metropolitan area, we offer our students the best possible conditions for studying and personal development. The Stuttgart region is Germany's industrial powerhouse and one of Europe's strongest economic regions. The university has close links to global business players in the area and is a valued partner to local small and medium sized enterprises, most of these are also known as "Hidden Champions".

NGU's central location allows for quick and easy travel to many exciting European cities.

Combine the best of two worlds: Scenic environment at both locations and the benefits of a metropolitan area.

Innovative applied research

1 NGU is home to eight research institutes in which experienced researchers and PhD candidates work on highly topical issues of applied research from biodiversity and sustainable agriculture to city development, art therapy and eco-friendly consumption.

2 We frequently collaborate with various companies and organizations to create innovative practical solutions and involve students in our projects to enable hands-on immersive learning.

3 We publish our results in international top-notch peer-reviewed journals.

05

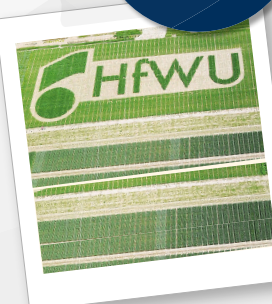

We take social responsibility seriously

NGU stresses the need to create economic value for the benefit of all while respecting ecological boundaries.

Sustainability as a principle in teaching, research and transfer shapes the profile of our institution.

We get involved in social, cultural and economic life — especially in the towns of Nürtingen and Geislingen.

NGU International

NGU strongly promotes international education through academic exchange, joint research and international mobility. More than 150 universities worldwide are linked within NGU's international network of partners.

It is our strong commitment to provide as many opportunities abroad as possible to students, interns, researchers, lecturers or staff.

NGU does more than just educate skilled and outstanding graduates. We provide academic programs and personal development for global citizens trained to work, live and communicate in an international environment.
